The Guildhall and High Street. The present building dates from 1330. The facade, which was erected in 1593, projects into the street and is supported by arches resting on columns. The common hall is surrounded with handsome panelling bearing the arms of the City Guilds and past Mayors. There are also some beautiful paintings by famous artists, including the celebrated portrait of Princess Henrietta Maria, daughter of Charles I, by Lely.

Printed in England.
